Alberta's liquor control act will come into force on or about Saturday it was announced by Commissioner R. J. Dinning last night.

"The Board will complete the establishment of stores at other points within the province at the earliest possible date, it was announced, and expects to have all the stores in operation soon.

"The Board has been advised that the advertisements for beer licenses now appearing in the press are premature," said Commissioner Dinning. "Only such advertisements published after the act has been proclaimed into force are legal." Arrangements have been completed with the brewers for the sale of the licenses.

"Upon the act coming into force permits under the act will be obtainable from all vendors. Spirits an

Promise Reduction in

Canadian Machinery

In a statement commenting on the federal budget the Massey-Harris Co. says in part:

"The provisions of the budget which except from implements from the sales tax are most welcome, and these combined with the lowering of customs duties on raw materials announced by the government's amendments, now enable the manufacturer to make an immediate reduction in his prices. Even so far as the Messey-Harris company is concerned (and no doubt this applies to other implement companies) the benefit will be passed on to the farmer in the way of reduced prices for the complete saving effected in the remission of the sales tax and the lessened duties on

Commenting on this statement Premier King said:

"If, as indicated, the farmers of our country are immediately given the benefit of the lowering duties and ab-lition of the sales tax, by a corresponding reduction in the price of implements, it is up to every farmer to stimulate Canadian industry by the purchase of Canadian made machinery; and I believe they will."

German Electors Favor Dawes Report

In the national election held in Germany last week the German people showed by their vote that they approved of the Dawes-McKenna reparations plan.

The total vote of the Socialist Democrats, Centrists and Folkspart candidates—all of whom were pledged to support the plan—was more than half of the ballots cast.

A GOOD PRECEDENT

IN the appointment of officials to administer the new liquor act it is quite evident that the provincial government is leaving the matter entirely in the hands of Commissioner Dinning. In this the government is acting very wisely and by doing so they are setting precedents which it would be well for other governments and parties to follow.

Commissions and commissioners have been appointed by other party governments in the past. The reason given for such appointments was that they were under their control might be taken out of politics. Yet when these commissions or commissioners were appointed they were chosen from men prominent in the ranks of the party in power. Then when the time came for the selection of officials to act under such commissions these selections were almost invariably made from among the faithful in the ranks of the party appointing the commission. The result was that the business for which he commission was appointed was not taken out of politics. The ultimate result of this was that the best men for the positions were selected. It is not as if the business conducted in the most satisfactory manner.

So far as the liquor appointments to date are concerned there has been no attempt made to secure positions for friends of the government. Indeed many of the selections made have been from among men who were strongly opposed to the present administration, and so far as we can gather they are all well suited for the positions.

This departure from the old party patronage system is something for which the Greenfield government should be congratulated.

THE MINERAL TAX

THE federal government has announced definitely that it will not allow the Alberta government to impose the Mineral tax as passed at the last session of the legislature.

This is unfortunate as the imposing of such a tax was good legislation. Too many large corporations are holding mineral rights now and the result is that for selfish reasons they are not being developed.

It has been claimed by some that the imposition of such would work a hardship on farmers. This could not be the case since few if any farmers own the mineral rights on their property. These rights are held by the large corporations which originally owned the land.

If the legislature were allowed to impose this tax and then retain the mineral rights on lands on which the tax was not paid would be a good thing for the province.

Now that townspeople are putting in gardens, and leaving their owning stock and hens should make a special effort to have them properly taken care of. It is very discouraging to have one's work spoiled by animals and hens running at large. Beasts and the careless ones are liable to run in to expense for damages.

The need in this country today is not so much for a real job for every man, as for a real man for every job.

The Second Fortnightly Crop Report

Issued by Department of Agriculture, Government of Alberta, Edmonton, Saturday, May 2nd, 1924.

Advent of warm spring weather has caused activity upon the land in Alberta, and operations are general. The fact that very little fall plowing has been done has not been a disadvantage in what is now a large area of the province is about 50 per cent completed, with 60 to 70 per cent in some localities, while in the central and northern districts seeding is well under way. In a few places in southern Alberta the new wheat is sown already above ground. Some seeding of oats has also been done in the north.

Moisture conditions for the most part are favorable, but in south-eastern localities the soil is very dry and more moisture is needed for satisfactory germination. This condition does not exist, however, over a very wide spread area. Slight rains have fallen during the past week in the Medicine Hat area, and heavier rains towards the south.

Leithridge and along the foothills areas. No frost precipitation in the central and northern areas has been recorded since the last report. The conditions are that there will be a slightly increased acreage in wheat this season, most districts report this season.

Spring Preparation for the Corn Crop

Corn is this year finding an increased use as a substitute for the overwintered and in some districts growing importance, the following suggestions, based on several years' experience in the Experimental Station at Farm, Indian Head, may be found of interest.

If possible, haryard manure—preferably rotted—should be ploughed under, as the first step in preparation for growing the corn. With retentive manure there is much less danger of heavy growth of weeds than would be likely if unrotted manure were used. Following the ploughing, sufficient cultivation should be given to make a suitable seed bed for the germination of seed. The more weeds that can be killed before corn is planted, the less labour will be necessary after the crop is up.

By the time the corn is planted, the wheat seeding is completed, and probably the other spring grains, as well. There will be a growth of weeds on the corn ground and these should be killed by thorough cultivation. The completion of which will usually coincide with the time to plant the corn.

Corn should be planted about the middle of May, although, in most seasons, fairly good crops will be secured from any planting up until the end of the month. The corn planter is generally used on the western side of the farm. Where the ground is dirty the chisel system of planting is better. The best seed is allowed for corn cultivation. The corn planter is generally used on the western side of the farm. Where the ground is dirty the chisel system of planting is better. The best seed is allowed for corn cultivation.

After planting, and until the corn is three or four inches high, the land should be harrowed every time a growth of young weeds is seen. This harrowing is one of the most important of cultivation, as the growth of young weeds are not easily destroyed at this time. After the corn is up, the harrowing should be done across the rows, as this lessens the amount of corn pulled out. Do not be afraid of serious damage to the corn crop by the harrowing, as this appears at the time much worse than is actually the case. Further cultivation may be done if necessary, but it is better to keep down weeds and other regular corn cultivators, or ordinary cultivators, adapted to the job by removing some weeds, may be used.

Total immigration from Great Britain in the colonies last year was 135,000, as against 119,000 in 1913, though substantially larger than previous years.

Here and There

A new record has been established by the Department of Marine and Fisheries in the number of white fish eggs collected for hatchery purposes in the Great Lakes and Lake of the Woods. A total of 461,560,000 eggs were obtained, which exceeds all previous collections in the province of Ontario.

A new record of aspen has been discovered on the Lake of the Woods. The quality of the stone has been reported as excellent for various practical uses, and practical trials are under way. The transportation is available direct from the deposits at Whiggon and Dryden, on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

It is announced by the Canadian Pacific Railway that two free scholarships covering four years' tuition in architecture, chemical, civil, mechanical or electrical engineering at McGill University are offered, subject to competitive examination, to graduates and other students enrolled on the permanent staff of the company and under 21 years of age, and to minor sons of employees.

Canada's fisheries production during 1923 is estimated to be worth $400,000,000. At the beginning of the year it was not thought that any of the fish exports to the United States for the Fordey tariff had been lost. In the exports to the United States, as at the year were on the proved this giving fisheries along the Atlantic coast especially a much better market.

Walter Maughan Fills New Post Made Necessary by Growth of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Business

Walter Maughan, newly appointed Steamship Passenger Manager of the Canadian Pacific, has been born in Toronto, Ontario, April 15, 1870. He was educated at the University of Toronto, and in 1891, he was appointed to the position of Passenger Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, which was then the only steamship line operating between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. Mr. Maughan was born in Toronto, Ontario, April 15, 1870, and joined the Canadian Pacific Railway in 1891. He was made City Passenger Agent at Toronto, and in 1903, he was appointed to the position of Passenger Manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway. In the same year he was moved to Montreal as Assistant General Passenger Agent, and in December, 1902, became Assistant to the General Passenger Traffic Manager. He has risen to his present high position by outstanding ability as much as by long service.

During the war Mr. Maughan did valuable work as Chairman of the Demobilization Committee of the Canadian Railway Board representing the Minister of Militia, and was made a Lieutenant-Colonel in recognition of his work in transporting troops from Canada and China to France.

Mr. Maughan's appointment results from recent remarkable growth of the Canadian Pacific Steamship business, which has been especially equipped for West India, Mediterranean and around the world cruises that are planned. At present in regular service on the Atlantic Ocean depart from St. John, N.B. (winter season) and Montreal and Quebec (summer season) to Southampton, Liverpool, Belfast, Glasgow, Cherbourg, Antwerp, and Hamburg. The Canadian Pacific has eighteen passenger steamships with an aggregate displacement tonnage of 360,000 tons. During the coming summer season the Company will have 100 passenger steamship sailings from Montreal and Quebec. These exclusive of the fleet of freight steamships.

In the Orient trade four of the largest and fastest ships on the Pacific Ocean operate between Vancouver and Victoria and Japan and China.

In the year 1924 the Canadian Pacific will operate their own routes to the West Indies, Mediterranean, Egypt, the Holy Land, and also around the world. Three of their finest oil burning ships have been allotted to these services. One of these ships is the "Great Canadian" company not only provides for the needs of the passengers but also for the needs of the world's largest and fastest ships on the Pacific Ocean.

"Fisherman's Luck, Good Business."

"Who has got a dash of fishery spirit, let it be on the Fourth Street, at the corner of the city, you may have him for a good business."

SOME men are stamp collectors, some play golf, others go off across the world in search of big game. Some hunt hidden treasures whether of an archeological nature or the raw material as found in the Canadian mine. To some men these things are merely hobbies, to others a living.

Some business men see some occupations call for a breaking down of the call-in partitions which we are apt to erect between what the world is pleased to call "a living" and "a hobby." When we have worked for some time at earning a "living" we are apt to suddenly aware that something of strength, something of distinction, some "virtue" has gone out of us. And in order to get back, we set about recreating that lost strength. By nature man is not a "specialist." Yet we all know, to our cost, the tendency of modern business-life is to make him so. The pressure of "business" of which we boast, the system, the competition of which we think so highly, as to be always in pursuit of it, is in reality a juggernaut, a fierce flood overlord of the worst type, since we are in bondage to it without knowing it. We actually let our chains lovingly to our hands.

Sometimes the awakening comes in the form of a rude shock. A sportsman's dream. But as often as set in quite another form. That subtle and yet tangible shock received when some younger, fresher mind, some "mere child of a fellow" beats us at our own game. That is the awakening that burns. Because we know that at the club, other men are saying "Well-down on the job." Whereas the truth is, "Stuck on his job, not wisely but too well" would be no much nearer the truth.

When civilization first began its pressure. When business first began to be intense we felt we "could not leave it," the number of "break-downs" was terrific. But just about that time we began to see that to go down and out was not playing the game, but surrendering, surrendering not altogether to pressure from without but to weakness within—a failure to stand against "fearful"—unexpected—impulses.

And so we began to call about for a means of strength—that iron strength of nerve—which would stand up against the ordinary pressure and rise like a well-trained ship to meet the waves of unexpected storms.

One who has lived upon a positive calm and has been able to stand up against the pressure of the modern life and business we may say at least one past twenty years, and more firmly yet within the last ten years.

Then now go away and leave business at least one past twenty years. And the wider lake a vacation not only in summer but in winter as well. The more intense the business the better, the greater need for reinforcing that strength which is burned out. The greater need for the gathering up of strength.

So, when you see a business-man, a banker or railroad president, or a company official, or any other rank-honored person, sitting the fly on a horse, or exhibiting the skin of a Nippon trout sketched on a board, placed as any school boy who has carried his hat out as a prize, or kicked a goal for the school team, you know him not so much for a great sport as for a good business man. The very fact that he belongs to these who get back to Nature with his vacation. You know him for a man who has the business intuition of the day in hand. One who is ahead—ahead even—that tide which surges in the affairs of men. "A live wire," competing youth, calls him—Victoria Hayward

Twenty Thousand Dollar Baby Christened

THERE was a christening at the Mount Royal Hotel, Montreal, recently, and, quite apropos, it was of the Montreal. The Canadian Pacific having on hand a very fine model of their Atlantic treasure, the Empress of Britain, placed it in drydock in Montreal about the same time that the Empress herself went to sea. Upon being overhauled, the model was found to be in excellent condition. It is now on exhibition at the Mount Royal Hotel where it will remain on exhibition and where Mr. Vernon G. Carley, resident manager of the hotel, "cradled" a bottle of champagne, christening the Empress (the model) as she moved to her new berth.

The christening of the Montreal is complete in every particular and is indeed such an excellent replica on a small scale of the former Empress that it has been insured for $20,000. The model is forever fixed in length and provides a deal of entertainment for the visitor whether adult or juvenile.
